

A Madness of Music

Very loosely inspired by the life of Igor Stravinsky, a Russian, and later French and American composer, pianist and conductor widely considered to be one of the most important and influential composers of the 20th century. The story centers on four musical characters: a composer, a fine pianist who wants to be a composer, and a cellist, who is in love with a female violinist. Two of these four people lose out; one staggers, but manages to recover; but only one succeeds with a long lifetime of wonderfully fulfilled ambition. Why do such talented people have only a 25% success? Read the book and see!
